The African Helicobacter and Microbiota Study Group (AHMSG) was founded in 2021 by a collaboration of pioneers in the field of H. pylori research. The aim of this group is to promote clinical and basic research on the continent, in the field of H. pylori, with the view to impact on the management of this condition in Africa. As part of our many activities, we will be hosting the inaugural AHMSG conference in Cape Town in August 2024 which will attract clinicians, researchers, students, the pharmacological industry as well as policy makers from Africa and the international community. We are requesting support to host a successful meeting.
